Charities and Giving – What's new

Contact us right away if your charity has been impacted by wildfires, floods or other adverse weather events

Disasters, such as floods and wildfires, are occurring more frequently and with greater severity. As always, the safety and security of your directors, employees, volunteers, and communities remain a shared priority.

In such cases, we understand that you may be unable to meet your filing obligations as usual, due to extraordinary circumstances beyond your control.

If this situation were to impact your charity, it is important to contact the Charities Directorate as soon as possible to discuss your situation.

Keeping adequate books and records

As a prevention tool, the Canada Revenue Agency (CRA) recommends that copies of key documents and records be kept at all times in a separate location (preferably offsite) for back-up purposes. This is especially true in the context of protecting your charity's books and records from damaging adverse weather events. In order to make sure your registered status is not affected, and to help you better understand your books and records obligations as a registered charity, please visit our page on Keeping adequate books and records.
